

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An image display apparatus comprises a pixel electrode, a common electrode, and a switching element to control an electric potential supplied to the pixel electrode. In addition, an auxiliary electrode forms an auxiliary capacitance between a portion of the auxiliary electrode and a portion of the pixel electrode. The common electrode is adapted to be set at a first electric potential, and the auxiliary electrode is adapted to be set at a second, different electric potential.